GUELPH, Ont.—PlantForm Corporation is one of 14 biotechnology companies to be showcased at the 2012 World's Best Technology (WBT) Innovation Marketplace in San Diego, California Oct. 24-26.

“PlantForm is pleased that our therapeutic antibody drug production platform will be featured as one of the ‘breakthrough technologies’ at the WBT Innovation Marketplace, and we look forward to participating,” said President and CEO Don Stewart.

The WBT Innovation Marketplace, established in 2002, connects innovators with investors. Companies and technologies are screened by a national panel of seed investors, venture capitalists and corporate licensing executives. Presenters are chosen from industry sectors including life science, materials science, energy, information technology and nanotechnology.

PlantForm Corporation’s mission is to provide low-cost antibody drugs to help people fight cancer and other critical illnesses. The Company is currently raising Series A capital to advance into the regulatory approval process for its first antibody drug, a biosimilar version of the breast cancer drug Herceptin® (trastuzumab). Biosimilar versions of two additional antibody drugs for cancer are in development, as is an innovator drug to fight HIV/AIDS infection. Projected revenue is more than $50 million by 2016.
